

THE GRATEFULNESS
VAMPIRE
SOCIAL CLUB

Welcome to the Social Club!

Congratulations you've become a vampire and have joined the Gratefulness-Vampire Social Club!

We, the official Vampire Club Committee, decided a long time ago that we'll provide newcomers with this handy little guide. To help with the transition. We know that this new life can be rather unusual for some in the beginning.

About Gratefulness-Vampires

Gratefulness-vampires are vampires that don't suck blood, they suck gratefulness.

In order to survive, you must create situations in which someone is grateful to you. You may also create these situations artificially. It is up to you how.

Once you have received enough gratefulness from someone, you can choose to turn them into a gratefulness-vampire themselves. Not everybody is suited for this kind of lifestyle mind you, so only turn someone if you think they can bear the impending changes. Give them a sticker, so they can find this guide, and start their new life!

Club Rules

In the last years we made an effort to abandon old practices, as they sometimes created situations in which the ones we wanted to feast on, felt uncomfortable. So there are a few rules, that we must insist you don't break!

1. Be kind. Humans are not our enemies. If they don't exist anymore we have nothing to feed on.
 2. You have to be invited in.
 3. Don't force gratefulness.
 4. Suggest a rule: _____
- _____

Be careful

Receiving the gratitude of other vampires often ends in indigestion. So don't prey on your fellow vampires. Helping each other is still allowed, but remember, don't use them to quench your thirst.

Not everybody might understand your circumstances. Be careful who you trust with the information about this club and its members. Being a vampire might mean that you encounter prejudices, especially from humans. So remember to be kind and follow our club rules.

Difference is our Strength

Just as humans are different and wander different paths in life, there are also different vampires.

Everyone has their own style. This is the chance for you to be who you want to be, who you couldn't be as a human. Don't want to dress in all black? - You can be a rainbow vampire! Interested to explore your dark side

Getting Thirsty!

With this comes also the time to talk about thirst and how to satisfy it.

We recommend to feast at least once a week. But don't worry if you don't, you're already dead after all...but you will remain just a shadow of yourself, forever hungry and irritable until you manage to feast again.

Receiving Gratefulness

From our reports we know, that humans usually don't learn how to deal with the gratefulness they receive from others, so here is a handy guide, so you learn how to judge whether someone is indeed grateful to you, or just smiling.

A note on how to best receive gratefulness

Whenever you feast on humans, you may show signs of it.

Slurping, licking your lips, etc. are all well-known humble ways to show you have quenched your thirst.

Your Meal-Plan

(Here you can write down the next plans for your gratefulness sucking needs. Like a list of ideas and/or targets)

F.A.Q.

How much gratefulness is enough?

Up to you, you can feast on a snack or a four-course menu. Are you feeling full? Then it's enough.

Turn everybody into a vampire?

No. Just the people you think would be suited for vampire-life. Not everybody can take all this gratitude. And remember: The more vampires there are, the less prey we have.

Do I have to hunt at night?

Unlike other vampires we can be active any time of day. We also recommend that you pick specific days when you want to be out for a hunt. Get out your favourite garment, do your hair and make-up, accessorize. And then get out in the world and find your prey. Use your meal-plan, to organise your ideas. And: Remember to wear sunscreen!

This game is still a prototype. We'd love to hear about your experiences and feedback you have:

The background of the entire slide is a dense, repeating pattern of thin, wavy, purple lines on a white background. These lines form a complex, organic texture that resembles liquid or smoke. At the bottom of the slide, there is a white, rounded rectangular area containing text.
